On their seventh heaven

Indescribable. That’s how SA climbers felt as they joined elite club on top of Everest today

"The last few days were a battle," said one of the climbers. "We had to push through the worst weather conditions, but we never gave up."

SA climbers are now part of a select group of climbers who have reached the summit of Everest. Their achievement is a testament to their determination and hard work.

Record-breaker tells of climbing left behind to die

"I saw a dead body lying on the snow," said one of the climbers. "It was clear that it was a fellow climber." The climbers decided to leave the body behind due to the difficult conditions.

Hillary claims to have died

"I fell and was unable to climb," said Hillary. "I had to give up."

Hillary was seen struggling on the mountain, but eventually gave up. She is now recovering in a hospital.

SA climbers to return to base camp

"We have successfully reached the summit," said one of the climbers. "We will now head back to base camp."